Port Strike News

Workers in Antofagasta and San Antonio, Chile are on strike.

The duration and possible extent of the strike remain unknown and vessels are currently prevented from performing loading and discharge operations in these ports.

At this time there is no recovery plan as we hope the strike will not last long.

In the event the strike is extended, we will send out a plan for all affected cargo.

It's GRI Season

This is the time of year when many U.S. shipping lines announce General Rate Increases (GRIs), with many effective April 1. FMC law requires the lines file 30 days in advance of a rate increase. The lines use the time to gauge customer feedback and shipping container volumes to decide whether they will implement the increase in full, lower or postpone it. We will continue to monitor pending GRI notices and keep customers up to date. If you have questions, please let me know.
